Specialist Accreditation in Family Law

Andrew Warren has been appointed as an Accredited Specialist in Family Law by The Law Society of New South Wales.

This qualification is the highest recognition granted by The Law Society of New South Wales of excellence and competence in the field of Family Law. There are only a limited number of Accredited Specialists in Family Law in New South Wales. There are no others practising full time on the far south coast.

The Specialist Accreditation programme is not a training course. It is a rigorous examination of a lawyer's technical knowledge, competence and ability in their chosen field by leading experts appointed by The Law Society of New South Wales. Dealing with an Accredited Specialist means that you can be assured that your lawyer is regarded by the legal profession's governing body as truly an expert.

A relationship breakdown is for many people one of the most personally and financially significant events to ever happen to them. The importance of receiving advice from a lawyer who is an expert in the field cannot be over-estimated.

The difference between an Accredited Specialist and a normal solicitor is similar to the difference between a medical specialist and a GP. Just as a patient with a serious disease is normally well advised to seek the opinion of a specialist, a client with a Family Law problem, whether relating to property or children or both, is well advised to see an Accredited Specialist to be sure they are getting the best advice.

As an Accredited Specialist in Family Law, Andrew Warren appears regularly as an advocate in various courts in Family Law matters and is used to advising clients on both straight forward and complex problems. Here are some of the things our clients have said about dealing with him:

"When I came in to see Andrew, I had no idea what to do. He cut through the confusion and told me in straight forward terms where I stood".

"(Andrew) listened and knew what he was talking about. He explained clearly the costs involved and helped me make decisions"

"With your help, my husband and I have reached agreement and we can both get on with our lives"

Andrew's appointment as an Accredited Specialist is a significant achievement and means that you too can be sure you are getting the best advice.
